

Release 1 Summary

Due to difficulties with the installation of Xamarin, I couldn't participate as much as I wanted to, and had to rely on others to be able to contribute to the project. With the help of another group member, we created the calendar that was used in release 1. To we had to individually create two pages for this, a visual page that would be displayed and a source code for the following. To pick up the slack from not contributing, I also did the peer review letter as well.

Release 2 Summary

For the second release, I oversaw visual aesthetics for the app, I had to create the theme for the app and style as well. To complete this, I had to implement a series of codes throughout multiple different source codes and create new source code that would allow the alteration of the theme. Since I wrote the first peer review letter I opted to do the second as well.
